SOL TRAIN

"There is a strong synergy between Los Angeles and Sydney," says Harrison Condos, who with his brother, Nicholas, helms the Australian furniture company Harbour Outdoor. After leaving their native New South Wales for New York City, the designer duo's nostalgia for sunshine and sand eventually lured them to L.A., where they opened their first West Coast flagship in 2014. "Sun-loving Aussies need a constant beach fix, so the expansion made sense for us," says Nicholas. While all of Harbour's handcrafted indoor-outdoor designs echo Australian landscapes, the company's latest collection also flirts with California glamour, with new pieces such as the all-weather Hollywood low sling chair and the plush Lina armchair inspired by Catalina Island. 3240 Helms Ave., L.A., 310-439-5972.

TRUE TO FORM

Design art duo Dougall Paulson's sophomore collection, Ocean of Emptiness, picks up the celestial narrative of its debut offering, Dark Matter, revealing a range of conceptual furniture, art objects and more in tantalizing "chapters." The first is Auraform, which spans nickel and iridescent mylar weavings to ceramic and cast glass light fixtures, debuting at Blackman Cruz on October 12. *836 N. FRENCH TWIST

After causing a stir at Milan Design Week, French artist and recent L.A. transplant Marc Ange brought his exuberant, Instagram-tastic art piece Le Refuge to The Beverly Hills Hotel before moving it to Leclair gallery's West Hollywood space. New versions of the installation, a daybed encircled by palm trees, are now available at Leclair L.A. and through the online platform The Invisible Collection, and another edition will be debuting at Art Basel Miami Beach in December. Now Ange is designing a new Downtown L.A. dining destination for restaurateur Stephane Bombet (The Ponte). The space, which he describes as "beautiful and extremely raw," is a blank page on which to blend old-world glamour with a modern edge. "The building, the street, the neighborhood all tell a story I'm translating into shapes, colors, materials and lighting," the artist says. "L.A. has numerous faces, and California brings a unique light to each expression." Leclair, 450 N. Robertson Blvd., W.H., 310-360-0262.

SEA THE LIGHT

Inspired by Japanese fishing floats and lobster buoys, L.A. designer Brendan Ravenhill fashioned the Float Pendant—a cylindrical borosilicate glass fixture suspended on an adjustable rope and leather bridle. "It's a light that tells a story of craft, casts a beautiful diffused glow and solves a need," says Ravenhill, who had received multiple requests for a fixture that could bring light to an area without a centered junction box. Complete with brass swag hooks, the pendant can work solo or as part of a clustered group in endless configurations.

SOFT SPOT

Australian architects Amelia McPhee and Roshana Lewis merge supersoft Portuguese cotton and quick-drying technology in their new men's lifestyle brand, Cleverly Laundry. Comprising towels, robes and more, the collection is filled with thoughtful details, such as extra-long towels intended for a liberal wrap around the waist. Available exclusively on Mr. Porter, the line will also appear seasonally in pop-ups, including a stint at DTLA's Alchemy Works through December. 826 E. 3rd St., L.A., 323-487-1497.
